

UNIVERSITY OF GLOUCESTERSHIRE

at Cheltenham and Gloucester

COLLABORATIVE PARTNERS' CONFERENCE 2012

Friday 30 March 2012 Fullwood House, Park Campus, Cheltenham

The university celebrates the importance of collaborations with its fourth Annual Collaborative Partners' Conference, offering an opportunity for both international and UK based partner institutions to meet with key university staff.

The day of information exchange and discussion will be introduced and addressed by Stephen Marston, Vice-Chancellor, and will explore the opportunities and challenges that are inherent to this work.

The university's key staff working in the areas of Collaborative Provision and Quality and Standards will assess the impact of review activities undertaken by the UK Quality Assurance Agency, and provide an insight into how the university is set to respond to changes in the overall higher education environment. The day is intended to allow a free flow of information, and will optimise opportunities for information exchange and relationship development.

To book a place please email: jsedgwick@glos.ac.uk

For more information on the university's Collaborative Partnerships go to:

www.glos.ac.uk/partnerships/pages/collaborative